UNICRI, the United Nations Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute, was established in 1968 to assist the international community in the field of applied research on crime prevention and criminal justice.

The Institute is located on the UN Campus in Turin and is one of the five Research and Training Institutes of the United Nations together with INSTRAW - the United Nations International Research and Training Institute for the Advancement of Women, UNITAR - the United Nations Institute for Training and Research, UNRISD - the United Nations Research Institute for Social Development, UNIDIR - the United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research, that in collaboration with the UNSSC - the United Nations System Staff College, also located on the Turin campus, and UNU - the United Nations University, promotes research, training, exchange and dissemination of information.

UNICRI, through its Documentation/Information Centre, produces and distributes its own publications. This catalogue aims to present brief notes on the latest publications issued during the last three years and the bibliographical references of the old publications which date back to 1969.

Punishment and Recidivism:
The Italian Case

UNICRI publication No 88, Turin, 2009

In the Italian judicial system, recidivism of people coming from penal execution is a scarcely known phenomenon. Knowledge of the real nature and size of recidivism appears quite fragmentary, although they are periodically discussed in juridical and political debates. This deficiency is strictly connected with the lack of empirical research concerning the issue.

This work wishes to offer a contribution to the literature on recidivism. It presents results from an empirical research on pardon beneficiaries. The analysis looks at different aspects in recidivist behaviour and questions methodological approaches in criminological studies about recidivism.
